

RENTERS AND HOUSING UNION

SOLIDARITY IS STRENGTH

Why join or form a renters union?

By coming together, we:

- Have a stronger voice to government
- Have more power to fight for renters rights
- Have more protection and security

Who is a renters union for?

A renters' union is for:

- Tenants whose landlords neglect repairs
- Tenants whose landlords are overcharging on rent
- Tenants whose landlords disregard tenants' rights
- Tenants who wish to stand in solidarity with and protect their neighbours
- Anybody who believes that a home should be accessible to everyone, not just those with money.

What is a renters union?

Renters' unions are building, neighbourhood or city-based organisations made up of and led by renters themselves to fight for our collective interests and rights.

How does a renters union organise?

Building-based renters unions are generally made up of tenants who live in the same building and/or have the same landlord. Neighbourhood and city-based unions are networks of tenants who often have similar issues and stand in solidarity with each other, but may live in different buildings or have different landlords.

To join the Renters And Housing Union

go to www.rahu.org.au/join sign up and start organising locally!

